Incident Pushes Bank to Bring Back the Lollipops

Police say an Albuquerque, N.M., man broke out his bank's windows and then called police to come arrest him because he didn't want to do any more damage. KOAT-TV said Thursday that Charles Scribner reported his crime last week shortly after smashing the windows to a Bank of America in Southeast Albuquerque. Scribner told police that the bank had "sold him out." (AP)

BP Hit With $4.5B Fine; Workers Are Charged

Two employees face manslaughter over deadly 2010 oil spill

New Orleans

A day of reckoning arrived for BP on Thursday as the oil giant agreed to plead guilty to a raft of criminal charges and pay a record $4.5 billion in a settlement with the government over the deadly 2010 disaster in the Gulf of Mexico. Three BP employees were also charged, two of them with manslaughter.

The settlement and the indictments came 2½ years after the fiery drilling-rig explosion that killed 11 workers and set off the biggest offshore oil spill in U.S. history.

The settlement includes nearly $1.3 billion in fines, the largest criminal penalty in the nation's history. As part of the deal, BP will plead guilty to charges involving

"I hope this sends a clear message to those who would engage in this wanton misconduct that there will be a penalty paid," Attorney General Eric Holder said in New Orleans. He said much of the money will be used to restore the Gulf.

Separately, BP rig workers Robert Kaluza and Donald Vidrine were indicted on federal charges of manslaughter and involun-

The criminal settlement against BP does not cover federal civil claims, including Clean Water Act claims, federal and state claims of damage to natural resources or private civil claims. Settling those would probably cost BP billions of dollars more, and the company said it is "prepared to vigorously defend itself." David Rainey, a BP vice president, was also indicted for hiding information from Congress and lying to law enforcement officials about the rate at which oil was gushing into the Gulf of Mexico.

Greenpeace blasted the settlement. "This fine amounts to a rounding error for a corporation the size of BP," the environmental group said. MICHAEL KUNZELMAN (AP)

Top national security officials trudged to Capitol Hill on Thursday to grapple with fallout from the David Petraeus sex scandal as Defense Secretary Leon Panetta asked service chiefs to review ethics training for military officers.

One person missing from the tableau: Afghan war chief Gen. John Allen, whose nomination to take over in Europe is on hold because of suggestive emails turned up in the investigation.

Legislators went forward with a hearing on the nomination of Gen. Joseph Dunford to replace Allen in Afghanistan. But with Allen's future uncertain, they put off consideration of his promotion to U.S. European Command chief and NATO supreme allied commander. Allen had ini-

Panetta, speaking in Bangkok, gave new words of support to Allen, voicing "tremendous confidence" in the general.

Citing a string of ethical lapses by senior military officers, however, Panetta asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff to find out why so many generals and admirals have become embroiled in legal and ethical problems, a trend exacerbated by recent investigations of two of the military's best-known commanders.

Aides insisted that Panetta had been considering the review for some time and that it was not prompted by revelations that the FBI has been investigating Petraeus or Allen. (AP/THE WASHINGTON POST)

Murder Suspect in Patz Case to Plead Not Guilty

New York

The man charged with killing a 6-year-old boy in 1979 made a false confession and will plead not guilty in a case that catalyzed the missing-children's movement, his lawyer said Thursday.

Pedro Hernandez's admission in May to suffocating Etan Patz was a stunning turn in one of the most notorious and vexing cases in New York City history, prompting the first arrest ever in the case. But he is mentally ill, and his statements “are not reliable,” his lawyer, Harvey Fishbein, said after Hernandez made a court appearance Thursday.

“The really sad part of this case is that it will take time, it will take money ... and it will not tell the city what happened to Etan Patz,” Fishbein said.

Hernandez

While Fishbein has said Hernandez is schizophrenic and prone to hallucinations, the attorney said the New Jersey man is fit to stand trial. Prosecutors say an investigation found enough evidence to seek an indictment and proceed to trial.

A judge set a Dec. 12 date for Hernandez to enter a plea. (AP)

Social media arrests in Britain stir debate on free-speech laws

London

One teen made offensive comments about a murdered child on Twitter. Another young man wrote on Facebook that British soldiers should "go to hell." A third posted a picture of a burning paper poppy, symbol of remembrance of war dead.

All were arrested, two convicted and one jailed — and they're not the only ones. In Britain, hundreds of people are prosecuted each year for posts, tweets, texts and emails deemed menacing, indecent, offensive or obscene, and the number is growing as our online lives expand.

Lawyers say the mounting tally shows the problems of a legal sys-

Briton Paul Chambers, worried that snow would stop him from catching a flight to visit his girlfriend, tweeted the above in January 2010. A week later, Chambers was arrested, charged, convicted and fined. He lost his job and amassed thousands of dollars in legal costs. His case garnered its own hashtag: #twitterjoketrial. tem trying to regulate 21st century communications with 20th century laws. Civil libertarians say it is a threat to free speech.

"Fifty years ago, someone would have made a really offensive comment in a public space and it would have been heard by relatively few people," said Mike Harris of the free-speech group Index on Censorship.

"Now someone posts a picture ... on Facebook, and potentially hundreds of thousands of people can see it."

While the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that First Amendment protections of freedom of speech apply to the Internet, restrictions on online expression in other Western democracies vary. In Germany, for example, a neo-Nazi group has had its Twitter account blocked.

In September, Britain's chief prosecutor, Keir Starmer, announced plans to draw up new guidelines for social media prosecutions. He said he recognized that too many prosecutions "will have a chilling effect on free speech."

"The threshold for prosecution has to be high," he told the BBC. The new guidelines are expected in the coming weeks. JILL LAWLESS (AP)

France Plans A Push to Arm Syrian Rebels

Paris

France raised the possibility Thursday of sending "defensive weapons" to Syria's rebels, but Russia warned that such a move would violate international law.

French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius said his country will ask the EU to consider lifting an arms embargo that prevents weapons from being sent to either side.

But a Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman said such assistance would breach a 1970 U.N. decree that no country should help military action aimed at the violent overthrow of a government.

The topic of Syria is sure to be on the agenda at an EU meeting Monday in Brussels. (AP)

Walk This Way

Architect and city planner Jeff Speck and his wife and two kids could live anywhere. So why is their house in Washington, D.C.? Their friends. And those folks are likely here for another reason that's kept the Speck family around: the ability to use their own two feet for transportation.

Speck's new book, "Walkable City: How Downtown Can Save America, One Step at a Time," lays out a blueprint for creating places for pedestrians. It's a vision of an environment that's healthier, livelier and more economically successful — and one that looks a heck of a lot like Washington. "D.C. is one of a handful of cities getting it right," says Speck, who's worked on plans for 75 cities, towns and villages in his career (and is currently on projects in Memphis, Tenn.; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Long Island, N.Y.).

D.C.'s success is partly because of smart choices made eons ago. A grassroots effort managed to snag us the Metrorail system rather than the 450 miles of interstate highways mapped out in a 1956 plan. A walk to the White House on election night would be pretty challenging with an oval freeway running around 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

"And the legacy of the height limit is the absence of what you see in most American cities: high-rises and surface parking lots," Speck says. "Nothing is more boring than a big surface parking lot."

City leaders deserve credit more recently, Speck says, for introducing the largest bicycle-sharing program in the country and building a network of bike lanes and cycle tracks. Those steps benefit pedestrians, too, because they slow car traffic, which reduces accidents.

Not everything about the Washington area is perfect. Although the downtown Metro stops were built with walking in mind, many suburban stops aren't. You get off the train and wind up stuck in a parking lot.

"You should be able to fall off a stool at a cafe right into a train," says Speck, who notes that transit works best when riders are treated as walkers on both ends of a trip.

"Nothing is more boring than a big surface parking lot."

And although he owns a car — and likes to have a place to put it — Speck has issues with the city's parking requirements. When he and his wife built their house on an empty lot adjoining traditional row houses just north of U Street, it took nine months to get exempted from a bizarre zoning law. "On our street, not a single house has a private parking space, but I was required to build one," he says.

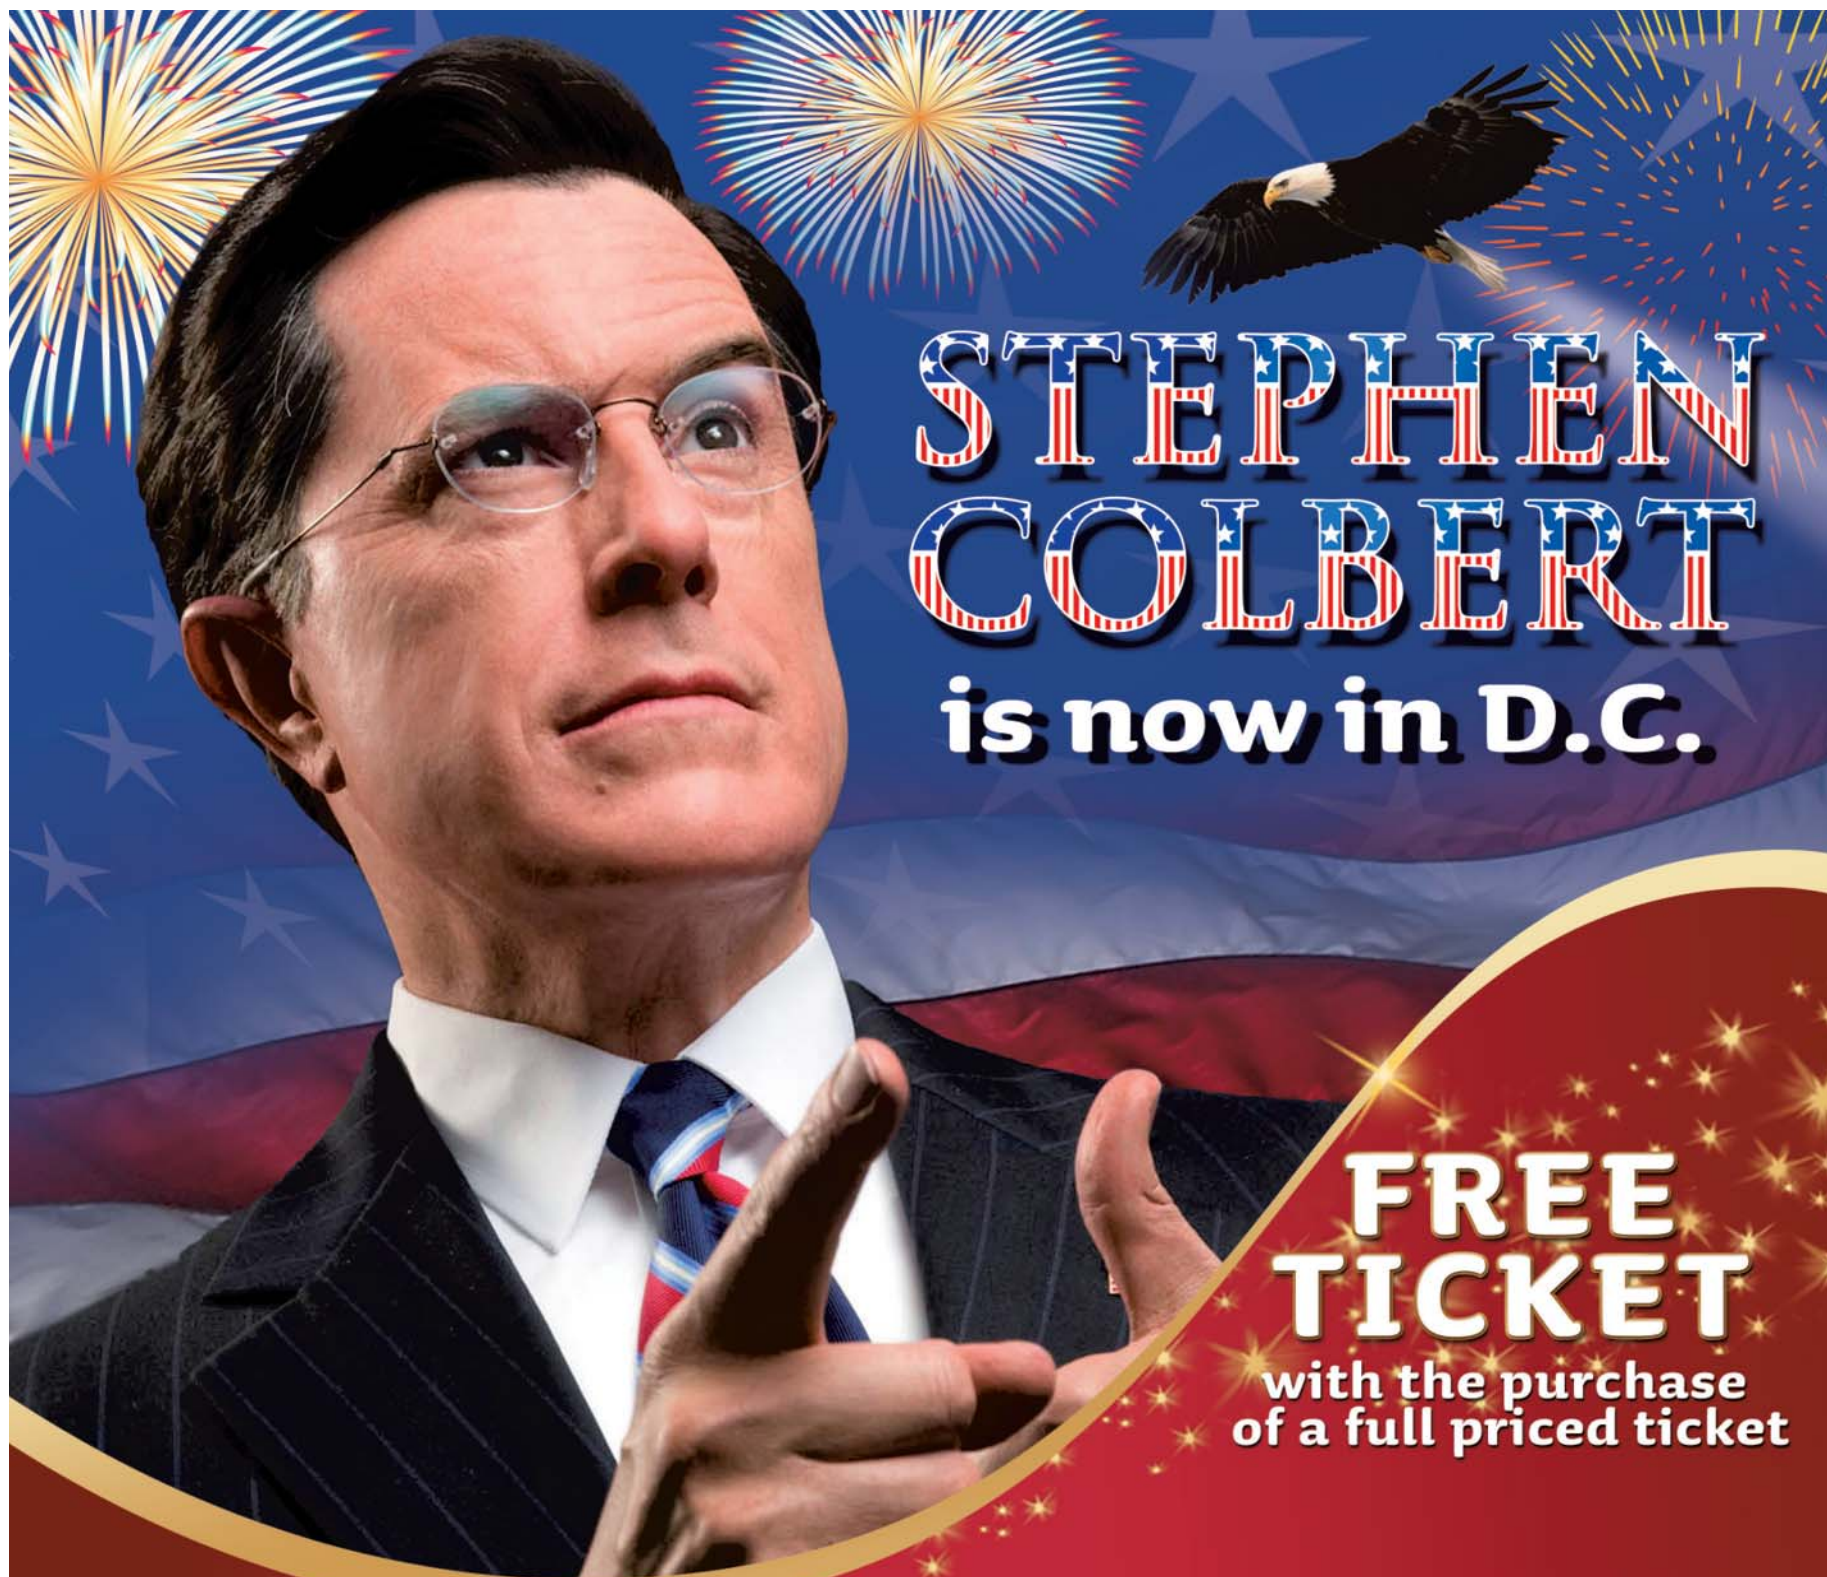

There will always be people begging for more parking and more roads, Speck says, until they understand the reality of induced demand. (And he's willing to explain it over and over until they do.)

"To the average citizen, it makes sense that adding lanes would reduce congestion," he says. Only problem is, that's not true. Additional lanes encourage more people to drive, until those new lanes become as congested as the old ones. "The only constraint to congestion is congestion."

To solve D.C.'s traffic problems, "you need to tax driving at a rate that forces drivers to pay the true cost," says Speck, who praises a program that charges drivers to enter London on weekdays.

But there's no real need to do anything, Speck says, because anyone who's stuck behind the wheel in D.C. has another option: Walk.

Gang members face charges for targeting homeless in crimes

Washington

Nine gang members robbed and beat homeless people and others they considered vulnerable in attacks that occurred in some of the city's most popular neighborhoods, according to an indictment returned Thursday.

The eight men and one woman face charges including robbery, aggravated assault and conspiracy. The indictment said they are members of a street crew called "Show Out," which authorities say required prospective members to fight or commit other crimes in order to belong.

The indictment said the beatings, some of which are displayed online, occurred this year in popular Northwest neighborhoods such as Chinatown, Adams Morgan, Foggy Bottom and the U Street corridor.

"The sheer number of crimes they committed, sometimes in a single day, is disturbing in and of itself," police chief Cathy Lanier said at a news conference.

Among the victims was a man attacked last June at a bus stop and robbed of his money and a backpack. Authorities say some of the defendants also robbed a woman leaving a Metro train, punched a Hispanic man while using racial epithets and attacked a homeless man while stealing his backpack of clothes.

Police say they also committed so-called "flash mob robberies" of convenience stores and gas stations. Those robberies occur when a large group of people converge simultaneously on a store, overwhelming the clerk or cashier, and steal items. ERIC TUCKER (AP)

Va. HOT Lanes to Open Saturday

Arlington

Early Saturday, a new set of lanes is set to open on the Virginia side of the Capital Beltway, and it's not just new asphalt. The 495 Express Lanes represent a new approach to paying for highways and managing traffic.

If they work as designed, such high-occupancy toll lanes may be the way of the future for planners trying to cope with the public's desire for congestion relief and determination not to pay more taxes for a solution.

But this new frontier is lined with questions, not least of which is the role of the private sector in operating a vital piece of the region's transportation infrastructure.

The partnership of the Transurban and Fluor companies that built the lanes absorbed much of the nearly $2 billion in costs in exchange for the right to collect tolls on Virginia's newest highway for most of this century.

With high-occupancy toll lanes, commonly known as HOT lanes, the government gets a break on the construction costs while giving commuters more choices for getting through some of the nation's worst traffic.

"The HOT approach provides an option, not a substitute," said Alan Pisarski, a Northern Virginian who wrote the influential study "Commuting in America."

Israel preps troops for a ground attack as Hamas keeps up its aerial barrage

Gaza City, Gaza Strip

Palestinian militants barraged Israel with more than 200 rockets on Thursday, killing three people as Israel pressed a punishing campaign of airstrikes on militant targets across the Gaza Strip. Three rockets targeted the densely populated Tel Aviv area, setting off air-raid sirens in brazen attacks that threatened to trigger an Israeli ground invasion of Gaza.

Late in the day, Israel signaled a ground operation may be imminent as forces moved toward the border area with Gaza. At least 12 trucks were seen transporting tanks and armored personnel carriers, and a number of buses carrying soldiers arrived. Israeli Defense Minister Ehud Barak said

Israeli soldiers in the town of Kiryat Malachi brace Thursday for rockets from Gaza.

Fighting Words

Israel and Hamas have another battleground: social media. Israeli Defense Forces and Hamas militants began exchanging fiery tweets shortly after Israel began its offensive Wednesday by killing Hamas' military commander, Ahmed Jabari.

"We recommend that no Hamas operatives, whether low level or senior leaders, show their faces above ground in the days ahead."

— A TWEET FROM ISRAEL'S
@IDFSPOKESPERSON

"Our blessed hands will reach your leaders and soldiers wherever they are (You Opened Hell Gates on Yourself)."

— HAMAS' @ALQASSAMBRIGADE,
CONSIDERED THE OFFICIAL TWITTER ACCOUNT
FOR ITS MILITARY WING

A Shorter Fight?

Israel's operation to stop Gaza rocket fire bears striking similarities to a three-week campaign against Hamas militants four years ago: Both began with sudden airstrikes that caught Hamas off guard, included a threat to invade the coastal strip and came just after an American election and before an Israeli one. Israel is likely to carry out a briefer, more focused operation this time around. Here's why:

MISSILE THREAT

Israel's missile defense systems are vastly improved, but it is also facing a better-armed Hamas that has missiles capable of reaching farther into Israel.

EGYPT FACTOR

Hamas has the backing of the new Islamist government in Egypt, which lashed out at Israel after its offensive began, calling for U.S. intervention and pulling its ambassador from Tel Aviv.

SYRIAN CRISIS

Israel was drawn into Syria's civil war just days ago, firing at Syria for the first time in four decades after stray mortar fire landed in the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights. (AP) he had authorized the army to call up additional reservists. The army said it was prepared to draft up to 30,000 additional troops.

"I ordered the military today to widen the draft of reserve soldiers in order to be able to be ready for any development," Barak said. Military officials said the moves were to prepare for the possibility of a ground invasion but stressed no decision had been made. Israel TV stations, however, said a ground offensive was expected Friday.

The fighting, the heaviest in four years, has also killed 15 Palestinians in two days and brought life to a standstill on both sides of the border. School has been canceled and many were huddling indoors.

Israel and Hamas have largely observed an informal truce for the past four years. But in recent weeks, the calm has unraveled.

The fighting began Wednesday after Israel killed Hamas military chief Ahmed Jabari in an airstrike. The offensive follows weeks of rocket fire out of Gaza.

The fighting showed no signs of slowing after dark. Israeli aircraft carried out dozens of attacks on militant targets in Gaza, while militants fired barrages of rockets throughout the day.

Thursday's attacks on Tel Aviv, some of the deepest rocket strikes from Gaza on record, set air-raid sirens blaring and sparked panic in the streets of the normally laid-back city.

Defense officials say Israel is prepared to launch a ground invasion into Gaza if necessary. And Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the army was prepared for a "significant widening" of its Gaza offensive.

Thousands of people, including top Hamas officials, braved the threats to attend the funeral for Jabari. "We want to kill in the name of God," chanted mourners.

Hamas Prime Minister Ismail Haniyeh eulogized Jabari in a televised speech Thursday night.

"What a martyrdom and what a glorious day," he said. "Congratulations. Rest in peace. Feel blessed."

He said Palestinians remained steadfast and defiant during the 22 days of the last Gaza war in 2009 and could hold out for even longer.

Season on the Brink

To keep any hope of the playoffs alive, the Redskins must win Sunday

The Redskins

The Washington Redskins' opening game of the season, their impressive victory in New Orleans, gave little indication about what was to come in the first half of their season.

As the struggling Redskins (3-6) resume their second half after a bye week, Sunday's matchup against the Philadelphia Eagles at RFK Stadium should make for a clearer crystal ball.

A victory against an imploding Eagles squad would keep whatever faint playoff hopes the Redskins harbor alive, while also helping to put a damper on coach Mike Sha-

1 P.M.
Sunday | Fox

nahan's controversial comments about playing for the future.

A loss against a Philly squad with questions at quarterback might be the final straw in reducing a promising Washington season to rubble with a daunting slate of opponents down the stretch, starting with a game on Thanksgiving against the Cowboys.

The Redskins' bye week followed dispiriting losses to Pittsburgh and Carolina in which the team's offense regressed and its defense continued its porous play. With an extra week to prepare for the Eagles (3-6), who will start Nick Foles if the injured Michael Vick isn't an option, the Redskins are under great pressure to play well.

3 Things to Watch

1 Nick of time: The Redskins don't have much of a book on Eagles QB Nick Foles, but getting pressure on the rookie and forcing him to make quick decisions under fire is paramount if he's the starter.

2 Grounded: After racking up more than 100 yards in three of four games, RB Alfred Morris has been held to just 135 yards in his past two contests and kept out of the end zone. Morris will have to have a big day against a vulnerable Philly D.

3 Killer instinct: The Eagles appear to have the countenance of a wobbly prize fighter — can the Redskins flash some punch and deliver the knockout blow against a team that has tormented them recently? E.S.

"I think our football team understands we are going to play our best football in the second half of the season," Shanahan said. "Our focus is on one game and that is Philly."

With the rest of the NFC East struggling, the Redskins have been given a small window in which to recover from their lackluster first half.

"Yeah, I think the playoffs are a realistic goal for us, and I don't think there's a guy in that locker room that doesn't believe that," quarterback Robert Griffin III said.

To make this run a reality, Washington will have to rediscover the offensive rhythm it lost over its past two games. And it will have to solve a seasonlong problem on defense. Both sides of the ball may get boosts, however, with the potential returns of wide receiver Pierre Garçon and safety Brandon Meriweather.

"We do know that we have to start winning football games around here to stay relevant," defensive end Kedric Golston said.

ELLIOTT SMITH (FOR EXPRESS)

8 The number of consecutive games the Redskins have lost to rookie quarterbacks, which is the longest streak since the AFL-NFL merger in 1970. They likely will face another one this week in Nick Foles, who is expected to play in place of the injured Michael Vick.

Embattled United Has Work Cut Out

D.C. United's playoff run has featured just about everything. Two Mother Nature-altered games. Controversy. A rash of injuries. Red cards. Rivalry. Elation. Dismay. United hopes there's room for one more item on that list: a comeback. D.C. trails the Houston Dynamo by a 3-1 aggregate score heading into Sunday's make-or-break second leg of the MLS Eastern Conference finals. If D.C. can overturn the deficit (i.e. win by three Sunday or outscore Houston by two and win in extra time or penalties), then its outlook goes from bleak to phenomenal. With a series win, D.C., as the best remaining team from the MLS regular season, would host the MLS Cup on Dec. 1 at RFK Stadium — a place where D.C. has not lost since March 10 — and be that close to the franchise's fifth league title. Here are the plotlines in play leading into a do-or-die Sunday. AVI CREDITOR (FOR EXPRESS)

1 De Rosario's Status

The improving status of Dwayne De Rosario (sprained MCL) on the team's injury report has piqued dreams of the clutch playoff performer and 2011 league MVP returning to the grand stage. United coach Ben Olsen was as revealing as he has been this week when talking about his captain's chances of seeing the field before the end of the postseason. "I'm not sure how many minutes he has in him, but he certainly can score and change games," Olsen said. "Dwayne's pretty gutsy and can fight through more than your average player. If we're in a spot when we need to get a goal late, I wouldn't hesitate to use him."

2 Allow Myself to Introduce ... Myself

Never heard of Raphael Augusto before last Sunday's match against Houston? The midseason acquisition made a surprise D.C. debut after a rash of injuries forced Olsen to play the untested 21-year-old Brazilian central midfielder. Augusto was involved in the most controversial call of the MLS playoffs, when Houston's Andre Hainault chopped him down from behind while he was headed in on goal, which — as referee authorities since have admitted — should have been a red card. If Marcelo Saragosa is unable to return from his knee injury, Augusto could again be on the field with the season in the balance.

3 The Bottom Line

D.C. is facing a two-goal deficit and a slew of injuries. Chris Pontius' groin injury was deemed by Olsen to be "a little more severe" than the injuries sustained by Saragosa and center back stalwart Brandon McDonald (calf), and all three starters were day-to-day leading up to Sunday. Houston has been in this position before, carrying a two-goal edge into the second leg against Sporting Kansas City in the previous round before holding on for a 2-1 series win. Despite D.C.'s long odds, United is still alive for at least another 90 minutes. "We want to continue proving people wrong and do things that people don't expect out of us," Olsen said.

PRO BASKETBALL

Hobbled Timberwolves Pick Up Josh Howard

The Minnesota Timberwolves have agreed to terms on a one-year deal with free agent Josh Howard. The Wolves announced the agreement Thursday, one day after they lost at home to Charlotte with multiple players out. Minnesota is missing Kevin Love, Ricky Rubio, Chase Budinger, JJ Barea and Brandon Roy. (AP)

PRO FOOTBALL

Ex-NFL Punter Sues Agency Over Field Turf

Former Houston Texans punter Brett Hartmann has sued the county agency that operates Reliant Stadium, blaming "unsafe turf" for a possibly career-ending knee injury. Hartmann played in the first 12 games last season before tearing his left anterior cruciate ligament and fracturing a bone in Houston's 17-10 win over Atlanta on Dec. 4. The suit includes past comments critical of the stadium's surface by Patriots coach Bill Belichick and ex-Colts coach Tony Dungy. (AP)

Harbaugh Undergoes Minor Heart Procedure

San Francisco 49ers coach Jim Harbaugh has been sent to the hospital for a "minor procedure" after doctors discovered he had an irregular heartbeat. The team said Harbaugh was having the procedure done at Stanford Hospital on Thursday. The 49ers anticipate Harbaugh will be back at the team's facility Friday, though it's unclear in what capacity. # Cabrera, Posey Named MVPs

Triple Crown winner tops Trout; Giants catcher beats Braun

Pro Baseball

After a spirited and lengthy debate between those who subscribe to the sport's advanced statistics movement and those who don't, Detroit Tigers slugger Miguel Cabrera was crowned the American League Most Valuable Player by the Baseball Writers' Association of America, topping super rookie Mike Trout of the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim in one of the most discussed voting campaigns in recent history.

LEON HALIP/GETTY IMAGES

Tigers 3B Miguel Cabrera was named the American League's MVP Thursday.

The voting wasn't as close as expected, with Cabrera receiving 22 of 28 possible first-place votes and a total of 362 points. Trout received six first-place votes and 281 points, and Adrian Beltre of the Texas Rangers finished third with 210 points.

EZRA SHAW/GETTY IMAGES

Giants' Buster Posey is the first catcher in 40 years to win the NL's MVP award.

"I don't believe it," Cabrera said on MLB Network after winning the award. "I don't have any words to explain how excited I am right now. Mike Trout, he got an unbelievable season."

San Francisco Giants catcher Buster Posey, the 2010 Rookie of the Year, was honored as the National League MVP, dethroning last year's champion, Milwaukee Brewers left fielder Ryan Braun, who finished second, and Pittsburgh Pirates center fielder Andrew McCutchen. Posey received 27 of 32 first-place votes and won by an overwhelming margin, with 422 points to Braun's 285. He is the first NL catcher since Johnny Bench in 1972 to win the award, and the first Giant since Barry Bonds in 2004.

After only three full seasons in the majors, Posey has won two World Series rings, a Rookie of the Year Award and now an MVP. JAMES WAGNER (THE WASHINGTON POST) scene with personal profile pages similar to those on Facebook.

Case in point: When a package arrives at Senate Square (201 I St. NE, 866-963-3056, Senatesquaretowers.com), nobody gets a phone call or note in the mailbox. Instead, the concierge scans a bar code and the resident is automatically sent a notification email. In a building with so many young professionals, "nobody wants to be called when they've got a package," says property manager Mark Hannon.

"The technology becomes the DNA of the building," says Zachary Kestenbaum of BuildingLink (Buildinglink.com), which creates the software Senate Square uses.

In addition to handling package deliveries, the software allows residents to do such things as reserve loading docks, arrange for guest parking and even send a photo of an ex-boyfriend to the concierge to keep unwanted visitors out.

In addition to the operational services, BuildingLink and other software similar to it offer residents

A Online To-Do List

On apartment building websites, residents can now:

- ▶ Pay rent
- ▶ Place repair requests
- ▶ Receive package delivery notices
- ▶ Consult appliance manuals
- ▶ Reserve building amenities
- ▶ Create a personal and pet profile page
- ▶ Buy/sell stuff
- ▶ Learn about building events
- ▶ Send out group emails
- ▶ Find local restaurants and businesses

a safe and private virtual world to get to know one another better.

Sang Park, a vice president of Vornado/CES, says his team initially planned to use Facebook to help residents connect and buy or sell belongings, but they wanted more privacy. His properties, including West End 25 (1255 25 St. NW, 888-217-2525, Westend25apts.com) and 220 Twentieth Street (220 S. 20th St., Arlington, 888-769-6855, 220living.com), use a program called MyBuilding (Mybuilding.org). "It's been really surprising to me to see how many people use it," he says.

Like Facebook, MyBuilding lets residents create a profile, look up information about one another and send messages on their building's intranet.

MyBuilding's CEO, Guy Blachman, says these programs create a community, and that's why buildings pay for them. "Research shows that if there's a better sense of community, then retention is greater," he says.

Since Senate Square began using BuildingLink, Cagle says she's seen "more camaraderie" in the building. Neighbors now send out emails about impromptu barbecues on the roof deck, and Cagle even found a baby sitter for her 3-year-old daughter through a posting.

Beyond the maintenance requests, new friendships and package notifications, these websites help residents fulfill more basic needs, such as ordering pizza. Shannon McGuire, a 220 Twentieth Street resident, uses her building's website to search for restaurants that deliver in her neighborhood and read reviews written by other residents.

"It's like Yelp, Yellow Pages, Google — everything — rolled into one," she says. TRACY KRULIK (FOR EXPRESS)

$1,950 This 550-square-foot apartment is chock-full of amenities, including a fireplace, washer/dryer and roomy kitchen. Though it's located in the basement (of a pretty, white rowhouse), big windows let plenty of light into the living room. The bedroom is snug, with room for little more than a bed. It's a short walk to the Foggy Bottom Metro, Trader Joe's and Whole Foods. Contact: Greg Nelson, info@abdo.com, 202-265-9393, ext. 104

NoMa 1BR: 250 K St. NE, Apt. 904

$2,170 Blocks from Union Station, this 894-square-foot one-bedroom is in the heart of NoMa. The building is slick, with a roomy gym, roof deck and courtyard. Inside the unit, a spacious living room has floor-to-ceiling windows with views of the Capitol. The kitchen's appliances are all new, and there's a granite-topped island. The bedroom is snug, but there is a washer/dryer in the unit. H Street and Eastern Market are both an easy walk away. Contact: Antonio Godoy, loreegrand@bozzuto.com, 202-698-0801 AMANDA ERICKSON (FOR EXPRESS)

A close-up portrait of a woman with long, wavy, reddish-brown hair. She has striking red eyes and is looking slightly upwards and to the right. Her hand is raised to her face, with her fingers resting near her cheek. She is wearing a large, round, textured diamond ring on her ring finger. The lighting is warm and dramatic, with a strong orange-red tint. The background is dark and out of focus.

RANDOM HOUSE

Sam Sifton

FOOD WRITER, TURKEY-DAY EXPERT

In more than 10 years at the New York Times, writer and editor Sam Sifton has held jobs including restaurant critic and culture editor. But it's his time manning the newspaper's Turkey Day food help line that inspired his latest work, "Thanksgiving: How to Cook it Well" ($18, Random House). The feast primer details both back-to-basic recipes (deep-fried turkey, spicy mashed sweet potatoes) and serving tips (please use cloth napkins!).

Why do a whole book on Thanksgiving?

I spent a couple of years manning the New York Times' Thanksgiving help line. And I realized a lot of people have no idea what they are doing. There's a lot of tension in the minds of home cooks.

In the book, you are a strong champion of traditional food, aka, no West Indian turkey or Southwestern mashed potatoes. Well, there's nothing wrong with having a West Indian turkey if you're in love with someone who is from there, or if that's your tradition. But I think a lot of the problem with Thanksgiving is the media. We need, as journalists, to deliver the new every year. So many people don't know how to fix the basics of the meal, or how to set a table in the presence of candlelight.

Why have people forgotten how to cook or how to set the table?

We work harder now than our parents and grandparents did. We're wired into our offices, and we never cook at home anymore. There's a time famine in this nation that makes it hard to take the time to make a special meal.

How do I pick the right turkey?

Even the worst, super-frozen industrial turkey can taste pretty good. But the birds that you get at your local farmers market, the ones that are taught Greek and given massages, are going to taste different.

"Setting a good table is like a secular sacrament. It's the stage on which the holiday plays out."

And what's the best way to cook the bird?

I love the smell of a roasting turkey in the house, and that's a great way to do it. But it does take up a lot of space, so I also think frying turkey is great and results in great crispiness and juiciness. Hot oil seals in flavor like a blister.

You're anti Turkey Day appetizers except oysters. Why?

I think because restaurants serve appetizers, we've gotten into the habit of doing that at home, too. But on Thanksgiving, I reject that. It's about doing family, friends, a turkey and a bunch of starches and vegetables. The idea that you'd cook all that and then sit on the sofa and consume half a wheel of brie is just repugnant.

Why is setting a nice table important on Thanksgiving?

Setting a good table is like a secular sacrament. It's the stage on which the holiday plays out, where we metaphorically give thanks for the harvest. So put down a runner, give each person nice glasses and put out flowers. It makes the meal better. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

Event Horizon | Panda Head Bizarre Bazaar

Panda Head, the online, D.C.-based style mag (Pandaheadmag.com), celebrates its newest issue with a "non-auction" of artifacts and objects used in the publication; there also will be drinks from DC Brau. 4-8 p.m., Sunday, $5 donation; the Press Dry Cleaning and Laundry, 1787 Columbia Road NW.

Hot to Dot

A CERTAIN SPICY CONDIMENT with a rooster gracing its bottle has nothing on Apinya (Apinya.co). The Herndon, Va.-born, Thai-style chili sauce ($6, Smuckers Farm, 2118 14th St. NW; 202-986-7332) balances local roasted mild and hot red peppers and garlic with loads of ginger. A few squirts will amp up your pad thai, ramen or pho.

Hoo Needs a Clean Shave?

AFTER CUTTING MEN'S HAIR for more than 12 years, Lauren the Lady Barber (the only name she'll give) fled the salon scene and opened her own men's grooming shop, Wise Owl Club (2010 18th St. NW; Wiseowlclub.com) in Adams Morgan. She and her crew provide cuts, beard trims and straight-razor shaves for D.C.'s hirsute. Plus, there's an edited retail area curated by Gert Barkovic of Mutiny offering beard oils and small-batch soaps.

You've Been Framed

THE NERDS ON THE BUS go "Hey! Nice glasses!" all through the town during the Warby Parker Class Trip (Warbyparkerclasstrip.com). The hipster eyewear company brings its beloved rims for try-ons and orders ($95-$145 with prescription lenses) to an M Street parking lot (between Wisconsin Avenue and 31st Street NW) Friday through Sunday via a yellow school bus.

A Beauty Rest Best

BAD SKIN can be a thorn in your side. Korres' new Wild Rose + Vitamin C brightening sleeping facial combats unsightly dark spots and uneven skin tones while you get your z's ($48; Sephora.com). Rose water and rose oil work together to weightlessly hydrate skin, while vitamin C reverses damage and premature wilting.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

We're having Thanksgiving at my house this year. I've ordered the turkey and tried out various pumpkin-and-Indian-corn centerpieces, but now I need some shoes, something comfortable enough for the kitchen, but attractive enough for the dining room.

—KELLY

Manolo says, once again it is time for the peculiarly American festival of Thanksgiving, when we honor our Puritan ancestors and give thanks to the God in the Heaven by committing at least three, and possibly four, of the Seven Deadly Sins (Gluttony, Pride, Sloth and, if the traditional holds, Wrath).

This year, the conversations around the table should be especially fun, given the fact that 51 percent of the people present will be gloating about the recent election, while 49 percent will be working through the five stages of electoral grief.

Cooking Tip: For best eating results, one should brine the turkey for at least 24 hours before the cooking. The Manolo the Chef suggests using the equal portions of kosher salt and the crushed quaaludes, just to give the tryptophan that extra boost that will prevent your relatives from quoting Rush Limbaugh and Paul Krugman at one another during the time-outs of the football game.

Get sweet on slightly sour highballs starring some exotic alcohols

If a cocktail is an ensemble cast, consider bitters (or amari in Italian) that outlier who always shows up at the right moment to deliver the perfect quip. Without bitters, the classic Manhattan cocktail would be “My Best Friend’s Wedding” sans Rupert Everett — all saccharine, no wit.

“Bitters are like a liquid spice rack,” says Brad Thomas Parsons, author of “Bitters: A Spirited History of a Classic Cure-all” ($25, Ten Speed Press). “In a cocktail, they help unify disparate ingredients and transform them into something much greater than the sum of its parts.”

During Prohibition, bitters emerged as a so-called cure-all. Though the stuff — a strong solution of herbs, spices, roots and a base spirit — can pack a 90-proof punch, stores labeled the bottles “non-potable,” allowing people to buy it legally. That loophole endures still in some liquor-free zones such as Virginia grocery stores, says Scott Clime, beverage director of DC Coast (1401 K St. NW; 202-216-5988) and its family of restaurants.

These days, the infused spirit remains a tonic — for bored drinkers.

“Bitters are being rediscovered,” says David Bueno, beverage director of Quill, the VIP-heavy bar inside the Jefferson Hotel, where the fall cocktail menu features the On the Road, a rye whiskey elixir with a bitter edge thanks to beet syrup, rhubarb bitters and Aperol (like Campari, but less potent). “To have a good bitters collection is a synonym of having a good bar.” That’s in part because the biggest fans of bitters are the discerning folks tending and stocking that bar.

“Bitters are in the core definition of a cocktail; the first written description of the word classified it as ‘spirits of any kind, sugar, water and bitters,’” Parsons says.

That’s where things start to get fun — and complicated. D.C.’s top bars tout dozens of varieties and an array of brands. As in most areas of the kitchen, home bartenders can start by stocking the basics; later comes boutique varieties, from barrel-aged to such exotic flavors as black mission fig. Just don’t expect to taste a huge difference between varieties, especially as a novice taster. Here it’s all in the nose — and in the pairings.

“Angostura is a must-have: Look for the bright yellow cap and oversize label next to the maraschino cherries and cocktail onions,” Parsons says. Whiskey lovers should gravitate to orange or rye-based bitters, Clime says, while Peychaud’s bitters are the secret to the old-school Sazerac. Try celery and rhubarb bitters with gin; Mexican molé bitters hold their own against tequila. Just remember: Shyness here is a virtue; start with just a dash or two.

“Bitters are like salt,” Bueno says. “You want to put just enough to make it good. Too much, and it’s undrinkable.”

“Bitters are being rediscovered. To have a good bitters collection is a synonym of having a good bar.”

— DAVID BUENO, BEVERAGE DIRECTOR OF QUILL INSIDE THE JEFFERSON HOTEL

Once you’ve gotten your bitter tongue in check, the next step in bitters sophistication is to explore the Italian amaro family of infused spirits — the kind you drink rather than dash, from caramely Amaro Averna to Cynar, an artichoke-based liqueur. Even better are the cool cocktails that star amari, from the Campari-heavy Negroni to the Argentine party drink the “Fernando,” i.e. sharp Fernet Branca (see sidebar for more information) sweetened with Coca-Cola.

At Italian power spot Fiola (601 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-628-2888), mixologist Jeff Faile pays tribute to the Negroni with seven types, from a twist on the classic recipe that swaps Campari for Gran Classico to the bright Bianco, with gin, floral-forward dolin blanc and Cocchi Americano that he calls the perfect introduction to the Negroni. “The Negroni is simple to make, but there’s so much flavor in just three ingredients,” Faile says. (His pick for the best all-around Negroni vermouth: Dolin Rouge.)

Alexandra Bookless, head bartender of the Passenger (1021 7th St. NW; 202-393-0220), is bitter-tongued by choice and trade.

“I like the classic Hanky Panky cocktail, which has gin, sweet vermouth and Fernet,” she says.

She also makes a cocktail called the Letizia, with Averna, fresh grapefruit juice and tonic over crushed ice, and her favorite amari include Amaro Nonino, Averna and Fernet Branca — so much so that the spirit becoming synonymous with the San Francisco drinking scene has its own tap at the Passenger.

Novices might start out drinking amari with tonic or soda water and a slice of grapefruit or orange.

“You can also try substituting amari into one of your favorite drinks in place of Campari or vermouth, or you can drink it straight like I do,” Bookless says. “The spirits are complicated and balanced with tons of herbal notes — and they come pre-mixed. And amari have a refreshing effect on my palate, which is nice when you spend the day cramming all sorts of tastes into your palate.”

Indeed, there’s a reason amari lives on the menu as pre- or post-dinner tipples.

“Bitterness keeps the appetite — and thirst — awake,” Bueno says. “It’s the bitter flavor that keeps you wanting more.”

Not-So-Sweet Stuff

In 1960, actor Tony Randall (of TV’s “The Odd Couple”) famously took a sip from his onstage drink — and immediately assumed his cocktail had been laced with poison. Nope. Just a little Fernet Branca, a sharp and syrupy aromatic known for its bitter iodine edge.

“Bitterness is a natural indicator of toxicity, which is harmful to our bodies,” says Kendall Eskine, a professor of psychology at the City University of New York, who recently published a study that found that gustatory disgust can influence moral judgment (there’s a reason Champagne calls for a party, while downing a bottle of bitters would call for a psychiatrist). “That instinct is why young children tend not to like dark-green, leafy vegetables, and why pregnant women tend to experience a heightened sense of taste and smell — particularly to bitterness — in order to protect their offspring from potential threats.”

Consider it the fight-or-flight response. “If we don’t know a food or drink is bitter and we are surprised, we generally don’t like it,” says Danielle Reed, a geneticist at Philadelphia’s Monell Chemical Senses Center. “When we know that a food or drink is bitter, and especially if we have learned to pair that food with a drug such as caffeine in coffee, we like it better.” K. K.

AUTUMN SWEATER

Makes 1 drink

- 1 ounce rye
- 1/2 ounce Averna
- 1/2 ounce Amaro Nonino
- 1/2 ounce maple syrup
- 1 dash Urban Moonshine maple bitters
- 1 dash orange bitters
- Garnish: thick clove-studded strip of orange zest

Combine all the ingredients except the garnish in a mixing glass filled with ice, and stir until chilled. Add a large sphere of ice to a chilled double old-fashioned and strain the drink into the glass. For the garnish, use a paring knife to slice a thick strip of zest from an orange. Twist it over the drink and rub along the rim of the glass. Stud the orange zest with two whole cloves and drape over the ice sphere.

ON THE ROAD

Makes 1 drink

- 1 ounce beet syrup (below)
- 2 ounces rye whiskey
- 1/4 ounce Aperol
- 1/4 ounce lemon juice
- 2 dashes Rhubarb Bitters

Shake, strain, pour into a rocks glass. Then add ice.

Beet Syrup

Roast 3 large golden beets. Prepare cane syrup by combining 1 cup of water, 1/2 cup of granulated sugar, 1/2 cup of brown sugar, 2 cinnamon sticks and 1/4 cup of whole allspice. Bring to a boil. Cook the cane syrup with the roasted beets. Puree, and run through a chinois.

way "experimental," because I start to have flashbacks to the follicle-contemplating days of my youth.

Which is why "Anna Karenina," out Friday, is such a joyful surprise.

Director Joe Wright stages most of the story in a decrepit Russian theater, complete with sets and an empty house. I heard that, and I rolled my eyes. But Wright has managed, through this device, to breathe new life into a classic story and give it new meaning. The layers of symbolism — often literal layers, as scenery is pulled back and pushed in — communicate characters' ideas and emotions in a way that has echoes not only of early cinema, but of classical painting and sculpture.

Wright combines nearly every visual artistic medium without diluting their power; add to that performances (particularly Keira Knightley's as Anna) that give nuance to characters who, in many previous iterations, have been reduced to caricatures, and you've got a film that's on fire with emotion and talent, behind and in front of the camera. In every sense, Wright's experiment is a success.

Another One Bites the Dust

'The Twilight Saga' concludes in typically soapy, silly fashion

Film Review

All good things must come to an end. And some bad ones, too.

For those with no vested interest in this protracted and supernatural soap opera, but who do care about cinema, "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn — Part 2" will be, unsurprisingly, a silly and somewhat cheesily made waste of time.

Almost the entire first third is devoted to Bella's (Kristen Stewart) adjustment to her new life as a vampire and unfamiliar powers: her sudden thirst for blood, her superhuman speed and strength, her seemingly insatiable (if PG-13) sex drive and the tricks she must learn in order to pass as human.

Once again, the special effects are low-grade, relying heavily on old-fashioned camera blur and unconvincing wire work.

Eventually, the real story clicks in after word reaches the Volturi — the vampire world's governing elite — that Edward (Robert Pattinson) and Bella's daughter, Renesmee (Mackenzie Foy), may be what's known as an "immortal child," a vampire baby who grows up with the mental maturity, and imperfect self-control, of an infant. Immortal children are illegal, since they threaten to expose the carefully hidden vampire subculture to the rest of the world. As Aro, the leader of the Volturi, Michael Sheen is a rare delight, smiling malevolently as he determines a punishment.

It ain't much, but it passes for drama — if by "drama" you mean a climactic showdown in a field of snow between the powerful, be-robed Volturi on the one side, and

"We, for five years, have been waiting for the story to be told. And now that it is, I don't want to say that I'm so excited that it's done, because that sounds like I just don't want to do it anymore, but I'm just excited that we don't have that on us anymore."

a ragtag band of the "good" vampires, now in league with Jacob (Taylor Lautner) and his pack of giant, CGI werewolves, on the other.

Fortunately, Lautner brings a welcome sense of detachment from the film's absurdities. "Breaking Dawn" could use a little more of the actor's wry, laid-back energy, and a little less pomposity.

As for Stewart and Pattinson, he looks perpetually stoned, and she as if she has just detected a bad smell. Neither one has much range, or makes much of an impression, other than vague malaise.

Then again, neither one has to. They are both so indelibly associated with the roles of Bella and Edward at this point that it will take each of them at least another couple of films before they fully shake the connection with "Twilight."

Perfect Models Of Imperfection

Film Review

"Silver Linings Playbook" serves as a textbook example of why directors matter. In any other hands, the adaptation of Matthew Quick's novel would be the stuff of banal rom-com fluff or, perhaps worse, self-consciously quirky indie clichés.

Thankfully, this fractured fairy tale of mental illness, family drama, ragged romance and die-hard Philadelphia Eagles fandom has landed in the superbly capable hands of David O. Russell ("The Fighter").

As the movie opens, Pat Solitano (Bradley Cooper) is being discharged from a Baltimore psychiatric facility by his mother, Dolores (Jacki Weaver), having been sent there after an incident involving his estranged wife. Determined to embark on a new life of positive thinking ("Excelsior!" is his mantra), Pat returns to his childhood home, where his father, Pat Sr. (Robert De Niro), runs a small book-making operation, kept afloat by football bets, superstition and obsessive-compulsive habits.

Off his meds and "white-knuckling it," Pat Jr. resolves to reunite with his estranged wife, Nikki; meanwhile, he meets Tiffany (Jennifer Lawrence), a sharp-tongued young widow with an acute nonsense-detector and a knack for brutal honesty equalled only by Pat's own socially disastrous candor.

"Everything's under control," says Dolores at one point.

But nothing's under control in this volatile petri dish of a world where emotions dart and glance off one another like so many highly charged pinballs.

Perhaps most important, Russell doesn't shy from the absurd humor mental illness can sometimes entail; nor does he make it look cute.

The tonal balancing act he pulls off is helped enormously by both Cooper and Lawrence, who successfully shed their movie-star glamour to play a couple of self-sabotaging misfits in search of a coping strategy.

Still, Russell doesn't deprive the audience of old-fashioned pleasures, including a rousing show-stopper toward the end. Would that every feel-good movie came by its good feelings so honestly.

4 ARGO (R, 120 minutes) This captivating, expertly machined political thriller jumps through every hoop the naysayer can set up: It's serious and substantive, an ingeniously written and executed drama fashioned from a fascinating, little-known chapter of recent history. It also happens to be extremely funny, crafty and enormously entertaining. Ben Affleck plays Tony Mendez, a CIA expert in disguises and "exfiltration," who at the height of the Iran hostage crisis in 1979 is called on to get six American diplomats out of Tehran, where they've been hiding in the Canadian ambassador's residence. He proposes to impersonate a movie producer who arrives in Iran to scout locations for his upcoming science-fiction flick. After spending a day or two chatting up the new revolutionary government's cultural ministers, he'll depart with the Americans in tow, each of them playing someone on the film's crew. A.H.

CLOUD ATLAS (R, 172 minutes) At its simplest, "Cloud Atlas" tells the interlocking stories of several characters over a 500-year span. How these disparate players intersect becomes the labyrinthine game, in which each story line gets its own distinctive look and tone. Those visual cues work well in helping viewers make sense of the dizzying time-trips "Cloud Atlas"

3 FLIGHT (R, 138 minutes)
"Flight" brings audiences perhaps the most harrowing scenes of a troubled airplane ever committed to film. With nerve-racking authenticity, director Robert Zemeckis puts viewers onboard the routine 52-minute short hop that will have life-changing repercussions for ace pilot Whip Whitaker. Portrayed by Denzel Washington with his characteristic somber focus, Whip is introduced in the film's opening sequences waking up after a night of hard partying.

Just another day on the commuter-flight circuit, until a dab of turbulence and a defective plane send Whip, his crew and his passengers on a spectacularly terrifying controlled dive from which the pilot will emerge a hero. Only a handful of people know that he's a sullied Sullenberger. The twist is that the arrogance and illusion of invulnerability that could keep him from saving his own life are the very qualities that help make him an excellent pilot. loser of about a buck can bank $10,000. For the most part, "Boom" lazily follows Adam Sandler's proven recipe for box-office success. Because of James, "Boom" isn't a total bust. But what's missing from this color-by-numbers screenplay is the bizarre touch of eccentric humor Sandler often lets creep into his comedies. By comparison, the generic "Boom" comes off as bland. SEAN O'CONNELL

HOTEL TRANSYLVANIA (PG, 92 minutes) As Count Dracula, Adam Sandler turns in a blandly unobjectionable — if toothless — performance. As Jonathan, a young American backpacker who accidentally wanders into Dracula's castle — set up as a hotel for monsters seeking refuge from human persecution — Andy Samberg does his best to animate his innocuous persona. Selena Gomez brings a bit more personality to the role of Dracula's daughter, Mavis, a "teenager" celebrating her 118th birthday while chafing at her father's overprotectiveness. Of course, she and Jonathan fall in love, leading to — well, not terribly much. It's something of a shame. "Hotel Transylvania" is entertaining enough for the trick-or-treat crowd, but a bit more bite wouldn't kill it. M.O.

LINCOLN (PG-13, 149 minutes) A peculiar, powerful alchemy takes hold in "Lincoln," Steven Spielberg's masterful portrait of the 16th U.S. president. Through that strange mix of realism, artifice, intimacy and scope that cinema uniquely possesses, viewers find themselves transported to 19th-century Washington, where Abraham Lincoln — portrayed in a surpassingly sympathetic performance by Daniel Day-Lewis — has just been re-elected to a second term. Working from a dense, lively screenplay by playwright Tony Kushner (who last collaborated with Spielberg on "Munich"), Spielberg infuses "Lincoln" with energy, acumen, surprising humor and the unabashed affection for his subject that most Americans will wholly understand and probably share. A.H.

THE MAN WITH THE IRON FISTS (R, 95 minutes) A boiling pot of wild martial arts moves culled from dozens (maybe hundreds) of violent Asian action extravaganzas as sifted through a Tarantino-esque fanboy prism, "The Man With the Iron Fists" feels like both a lavish vanity project and an earnest attempt to deliver a compendium of cool hand-to-hand combat set pieces. The vogue for kung fu, elaborate wire work and fancy blade flashing seems rather past its due date at this point, making director RZA's realization of his childhood enthusiasms feel a bit quaint, but you certainly can't say it's dull or uneventful. (AP/THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

PITCH PERFECT (PG-13, 112 minutes) Kay Cannon's script about the world of competitive collegiate a cappella combines the obvious elements of "Glee" with the plot and snark of the 2000 competitive-cheerleading comedy "Bring It On." Running through it all is the surreal DNA of "30 Rock," coupled with that show's satirical plausibility. For the most part, it works brilliantly. That's largely because of the music, which the movie approaches with an attitude halfway between awe and skepticism. Anna Kendrick also helps. In the lead role of Beca—an alterna-chick who only reluctantly joins her school's all-female singing group, the Bellas—Kendrick brings a healthy amount of amused detachment. M.O.

1 SKYFALL (PG-13, 145 minutes) To succeed, a James Bond movie must traffic in equal parts sophistication and pure preposterousness, a winking willingness not to take itself so very seriously, but with writing, acting and production values of the highest order. All of those elements are on hand in "Skyfall," which at the outset finds Bond (Daniel Craig) in Istanbul, pursuing a bad guy through bazaars and over rooftops in a ludicrous motorcycle chase that at one point finds Bond making a wittily blase entrance into a moving train car. That episode will somehow go all pear-shaped, though, sending Bond into something of an existential spiral. Eventually, Bond's struggle will reach his relationship with M (Judi Dench). The not-so-sub-text of "Skyfall" is the ongoing dialogue between past and future, whether it's youth vs. age, computers vs. analog or point-and-click terrorism vs. old-school geopolitics. A.H.

5 TAKEN 2 (PG-13, 91 minutes) As "Taken" protagonist Bryan Mills, Liam Neeson infused an otherwise by-the-numbers procedural with an ineffable, highly appealing blend of Celtic soul and heft. "Taken 2," however, is a sequel every bit as clumsy, ham-handed, outlandish and laughable as the original was sleek, tough and efficient. When Bryan travels to Istanbul on business, circumstances conspire to bring his daughter and ex-wife there in order to surprise him; soon, all three are caught up in a nasty web of kidnapping, sadistic torture and revenge spun by the very Albanian bad guys Bryan recently vanquished on behalf of his daughter. From its first set piece, "Taken 2" possesses the perfunctory mark-hitting of a movie more invested in going through the motions than raising its own bar. A.H.

2 WRECK-IT RALPH (PG, 93 minutes) The 3-D animated comedy is the story of a goofy bad guy out of a retro arcade game who "game jumps," leaving his cloistered universe in search of fulfillment in other games. It's a clever and original idea, with lots of cute sight gags. But the narrative itself is overly busy, noisy and unengaging, with little of the charm and heart that won viewers over in the "Toy Story" franchise. In the title role of a hulking destroyer who's only good at smashing things but who dreams of becoming a hero, John C. Reilly manages to evoke the pathos of an outsider. And Sarah Silverman is pretty perfect as Vanellope von Schweetz, a tomboyish pre-adolescent driver in a kiddie drag-racing game. Like Ralph, Vanellope aspires to video-game greatness. Their friendship is what ultimately drives the movie. M.O.

1 True Scotsman
After some growing pains, Craig Ferguson quickly found his silly, absurdist groove as the host of “The Late Late Show” on CBS. The Scottish-born comedian has parlayed talk-show success into roles in big-budget animated films such as “Brave,” proving that his humor works just as well with children as it does with insomniacs. Warner Theatre, 513 13th St. NW; Fri., 7 & 10 p.m., $45.50; 202-783-4000, Warnertheatre dc.com. 2 Ain’t No Theater Like Metatheater
WSC Avant Bard is tackling everyone’s favorite metatheatrical opus, “Six Characters in Search of an Author,” in which six characters without stories badger a director into staging a play for them. The setup allows playwright Luigi Pirandello to write jokes while ruminating about his own artistic angst and questioning the reality (and the point) of fiction. Artisphere, 1101 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; through Dec. 9, $25-$35; 703-875-1100, Wscavantbard.org. 3 Keep Your Distance
Remember your dream of becoming best friends with Stephen Colbert? Keep dreaming. Colbert will be at Politics and Prose today with his new book, “America Again,” but he’s not reading, only signing. And only signing his name, not personalized messages. And he won’t pose for pictures. But we’re sure if you talked to him, he’d love you. Politics and Prose, 5015 Connecticut Ave. NW; Fri., 3 p.m., free; 202-364-1919, Politics-prose.com. (Van Ness)

'THE DUST BOWL'

Now That It's Settled*SUN +
MON
8:00

"The Dust Bowl," a new documentary from Ken Burns, includes interviews with survivors of the decade-long calamity, which saw the topsoil of America's heartland literally blow away after unprecedented plowing was followed by a record drought and heat waves in the 1930s. The film, airing on PBS over two nights, Sunday and Monday, is also filled with little-seen footage of the devastation and Burns' patented pan-and-scan use of startling still photography.

“Let me be the first to say Comcast Sportsnet is run by morons.”

—@ORANGESKIN reacts to a Washington Post D.C. Sports Bog report that Ivan Carter, the Post sportswriter-turned-TV-host, is leaving Comcast SportsNet, according to a statement from the network Thursday.

“D.C. has so many great transit projects in the works that anything will likely be hard to budget. Metro is probably not realistic at all, and a MARC station is the best bet for something soon. But a streetcar on West Virginia Avenue, Bladensburg Road, or Montana Avenue may well be something to shoot for.”

—BEYONDDC.COM offers a suggestion after D.C. Councilman Kenyan McDuffie, D-Ward 5, tweeted Wednesday that he wants to look into a mass-transit option at the corner of New York Avenue and Bladensburg Road.

“Oh noooooooooooooo, already with the Salvation Army guys with the [expletive] bells! The only thing I hate more than poverty is Christmas.”

—@MICAHWHITE had the holidays creep up on him this year but was reminded of their presence at the grocery store this week.

“If you have yet to [download] the new Action Bronson & Alchemist album get thee to the opposite of a nunnery.”

—@PASSIONWEISS is excited about “Rare Chandeliers,” the new project between Bronson, the Queens rapper, and the Alchemist, the Los Angeles producer, released Thursday.

“As screenings go, you would be hard pushed to find something as prestigious as at the White House. In front of the president of the United States. Showing a movie about perhaps one of the most influential men in American politics, namely Abraham Lincoln.”

—MOVIEAGIC.IN was impressed that President Barack Obama invited members of the cast and crew of the Steven Spielberg-directed “Lincoln” to the White House for a private screening Thursday night.

Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Double-check all setups to make sure you can deal with any eventuality. You don't want to leave anything to chance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may not be able to attain perfection, but it's certainly a worthy goal! Don't settle for anything less than your best.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Doing only what another tells you may get you where you're going, though it won't leave you feeling as if you made your own contribution.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You can add a little more excitement to what would otherwise be merely routine endeavors today. Your involvement inspires others.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You should be able to combine business and pleasure with remarkable ease and success today. Some things must not be taken personally.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be quite unpredictable throughout the day. This can give you the advantage over those who play strictly by the rules.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can defy expectations and have those in authority choosing you for a major project. You'll soon play in the big leagues.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may feel as though you are not getting the whole story from someone close to you. Try filling in the blanks on your own.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are trying to gain the advantage over someone who has been running ahead of you for quite some time. It will take some creative thinking.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may find yourself waiting for someone else to make the first move, but once that hurdle has been overcome, things will heat up quite quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll realize just how far you and a friend have traveled together. Now is the time to begin making a new and exciting plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You have a few surprises in store for those who do not expect much from you at this time. You always have something cooking!

Samurai Sudoku

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

Channing Tatum chose to tell his wife he'd been deemed People's Sexiest Man Alive when they were washing skunk spray off their dogs. Jenna Dewan-Tatum told People they were kneeling in front of their bathtub: "He was like, 'Oh, by the way ...'" She added, "Maybe it was the sexy skunk musk that made him think of it." And she added more: "He's always been the Sexiest Man Alive to me." (EXPRESS)

HATERS*She Even Loathed The Dancing Penguins!

The author of the "Mary Poppins" books hated everyone involved in the movie, Dick Van Dyke told TMZ.com. P.L. Travers didn't want to do the film. "She just hated the idea ... she hated Julie Andrews and she hated me." Travers stated in her will that no Americans should ever be allowed to work on a Poppins project again, TMZ noted. (EXPRESS)

JOURNALISM*Criticism Is Bogus, Dude

Guy Fieri says he thought New York Times food critic Pete Wells' harsh review of Guy's American Kitchen and Bar was "ridiculous," he said on the "Today" show Thursday. "I've read reviews. There's good and there's bad. ... That one went overboard." (In the review, Wells compared a blue margarita to nuclear waste.) "People see me as a TV guy. I'm really a chef," he said. "Let's see where it is in six months." (EXPRESS)

TV APPEARANCES*No Tears, No Questions, She Can Be Drunk, Perfect

Lindsay Lohan, despite canceling a long-planned interview with Barbara Walters earlier this week, deigned to appear on "Late Night With Jimmy Fallon" on Wednesday. She wore an all-white outfit, sunglasses and a white bobbed wig for his "Let Us Play With Your Look" sketch. Lohan will also appear on "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" on Nov. 20. (EXPRESS)
